What is Communication?

Transfer and understanding of meaning.

Transfer means the message was received in a form that can be interpreted by the receiver.

Understanding the message is not the same as the receiver agreeing with the message.

Classifications of Communication

Classifications of Communication

Cont'd

You must be able to communicate with yourself before you can communicate with others.

People cannot read your mind, you are the one that must translate the things you think so that the other people can understand you.

Classifications of Communication

Cont'd

It is the process of exchanging and understanding messages between two or more people.

Four Functions of Communication

Four Functions of Communication

Cont'd

Control

Formal and informal communications act to control individuals' behaviors in organizations.

Motivation

Communications clarify for employees what is to be done, how well they have done it, and what can be done to improve performance.

Emotional Expression

Social interaction in the form of work group communications provides a way for employees to express themselves.

Information

Individuals and work groups need information to make decisions or to do their work.

Do you want the cancer?

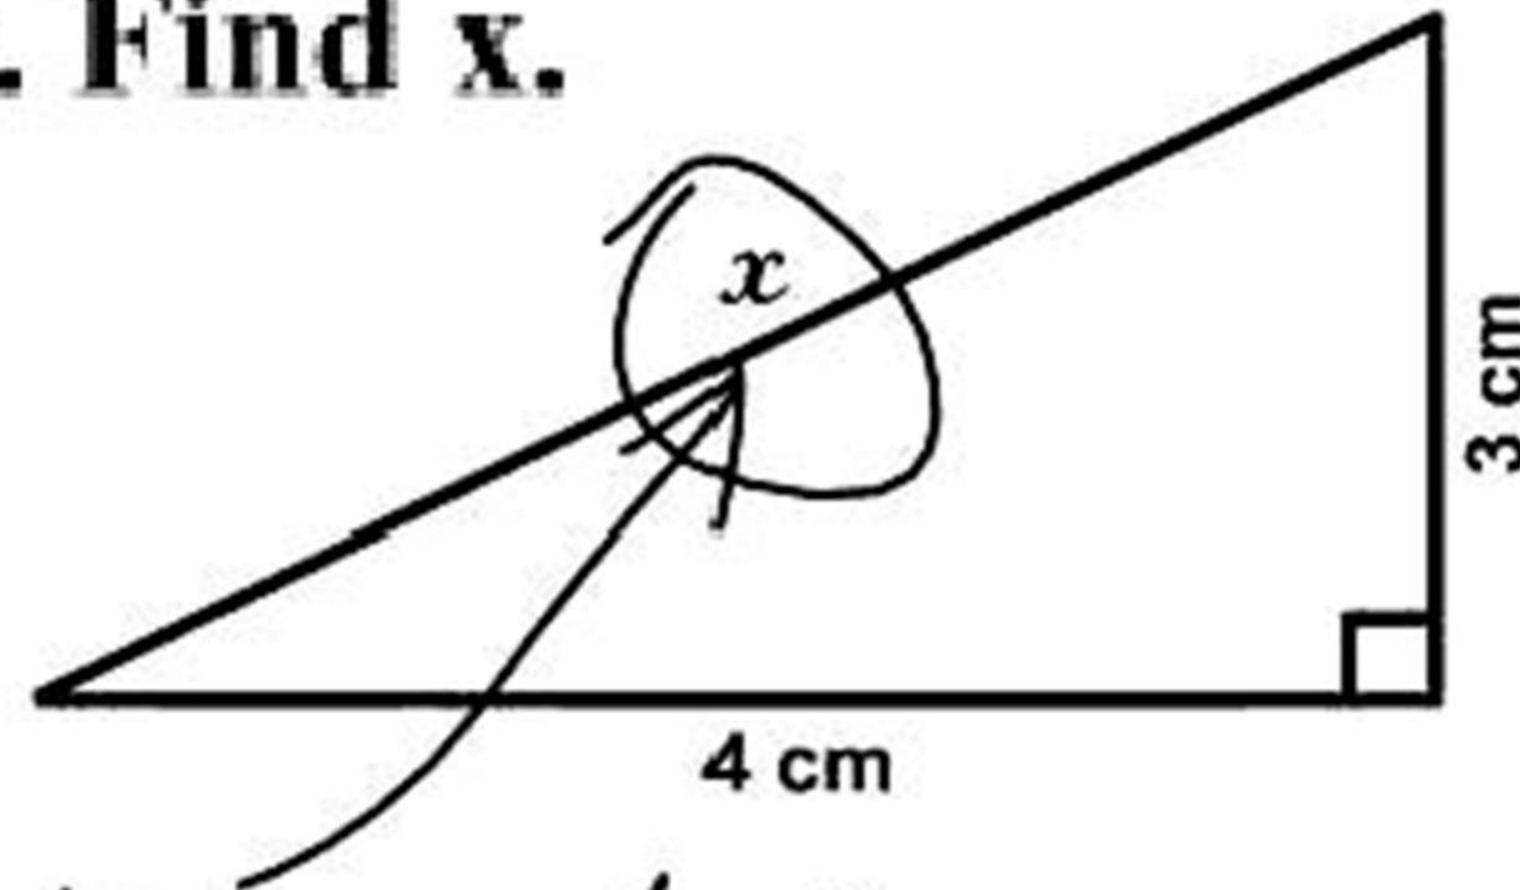

-This what?

-Do you want the cancer?

The cancer?

The can, sir?

- What is the temperature for today?
- How many continents in the world?

Open Ended Questions

- How was the instructor?
- What is your opinion about work-life balance?
- How can we save energy?

Credibility

Types of Credibility

Derived Credibility:

- Based on what takes place during the communication.
- Evolves around the way we present information, attitude, honesty.
- Believable people are those who share 'common grounds with us'.

Initial Credibility:

Often is derived from the person's title or position.

Terminal Credibility:

- Follows the communication process.
- Is a product of the initial and the derived credibility.

Dimensions of Credibility

1. Competence

- The more intelligent or knowledgeable a person the more credible he/she appears
- Competence is subject-centered

2. Character

- Believable people possess 'high moral' characters – those we can trust

3. Sociability

- Pleasing personality people are often believed
- Negative and "unpleasant personalities" are less believed

Dimensions of Credibility

Cont'd

4. Intention

- Motives are important in determining credibility
- Salesperson's attempts are often doubted because intentions are perceived as 'selfish'

5. Dynamism

- Shy, introverted people are less credible
- General Perception : Dynamic people express their opinions openly and honestly

Effective Word

The logo features the words "Teach" and "Learn" stacked vertically. "Teach" is in gold-colored, 3D block letters, and "Learn" is in white block letters with a blue-to-white gradient fill. The text is centered within a light blue oval that has a darker blue shadowed border. The entire graphic is set against a dark blue background.

Ladder of Inference

Ladder of Inference

Cont'd

I take actions based on my beliefs

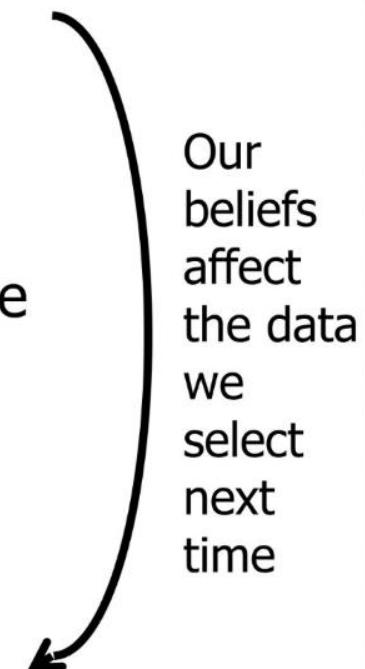

I adopt beliefs about the world

I make assumptions based on these meanings

I add meanings

I select some of this to focus on

I observe actions and speech

Our beliefs affect the data we select next time

Ladder of Inference

I am standing before the executive team, making a presentation. They all seem engaged and alert, except for Larry, at the end of the table, who seems bored out of his mind. He turns his dark, morose eyes away from me and puts his hand to his mouth.

He doesn't ask any questions until I'm almost done, when he breaks in: "I think we should ask for a full report." In this culture, that typically means, "Let's move on." Everyone starts to shuffle their papers and put their notes away. Larry obviously thinks that I'm incompetent - which is a shame, because these ideas are exactly what his department needs. Now that I think of it, he's never liked my ideas. Clearly, Larry is a power-hungry idiot. By the time I've returned to my seat, I've made a decision: I'm not going to include anything in my report that Larry can use. He wouldn't read it, or, worse still, he'd just use it against me. It's too bad I have an enemy who's so prominent in the company.
